

Pathologic Specimen and Fetal Echo Review Course

Thursday, December 8, 2022

The Pathologic and Fetal Echo Review Course, directed by Diane Spicer, PA (ASCP) CM and Ericka Scheller McLaughlin, DO, provides a unique learning experience viewing pathologic specimens of a wide array of congenital heart disease alongside the fetal echo correlates. There will be a live presentation of specimens along with interactive discussion with faculty enhancing the understanding of fetal echo correlates and how that affects surgical repair. There will be a live presentation of specimens along with interactive discussion with faculty enhancing the understanding of fetal echocardiographic imaging and interpretation. Sonographers, maternal-fetal medicine specialists, and junior and senior cardiologists alike benefit greatly from seeing these exquisite specimens. This is an opportunity you won't want to miss!
